Untermyer.
The situation grew more tense. The situation grew more tense. The spectators craned eagerly to catch the reply, and Mr. Baker leaned back in his chair, his chin resting on his hand watching the lawyer closely. Finally he said:

watching the lawyer closely. Finally he said:

"Yes: but 1 do not believe it could get into bad hands."

"You admit," persisted Untermyer.

"That if this concentration to the point to which it has now some were by any accident to get into bad hands it would wreck the country?"

"I cannot imagine such a situation protested file witness.

"I thought you said so."

"I said it would be bad." explained the witness vigorously, "but 1 do not think it would wreck the country. do not think bad hands could manage it. They could not retain the deposits nor the securities."

"I am not speaking of incompetent hands." said ar. Untermyer. "We are speaking of this concentration which has come about, and the power that it brings with it, getting into the hands of very ambitious men, perhaps not over-scrupulous. You see a peril in that, do you not."

"Yes," answered Mr. Baker.

"So that the safety in the situation really lies in the personnel of the non."

"Do you think," demanded the law-yer, "that is a comfortable situation for a great country to be in?" "Not entirely," said Mr. Baker very

At this point, Mr. Untermiter closed the examination precipitately.

That will be all, Mr. Baker," he said, smilingly, and the speciators sat said, smilingly, and the spectrum back with a sigh.

As the committee adjourned until next Tucsday, the witness, artising in his place, thanked the committee and its counsel for their couriesy, and was in return thanked for testifying. He and his party left immediately for the train that was to take them to New 2019.

Pinancial Triumvirate.

Early in the day, in the midst o bend issues of millions and the intricacies of high finance, Mr. Untermier endeavored to connect Mr. Baker, J. P. Morgan and James Stillman in a financial triumvirate controlling hugh interests.

"Is Mr. Morgan recognized as the great general of the financial army." he asked.

"He is generally so recognized, is he not"

"Well, yes," said Mr. Baker.
"And you and Mr. James Stillman are his chief lieutenants?"
"We were during the panic."
"And you three dominate the financial situation?"
"Baker would not admit this, but he said that Mr. Morgan "would be the most dominant figure in the work it he were younger," and that "he knew of no one more dominant than Mr. Morgan."

Princeton, N. J., January 10—President-Elect Wilson is en route to-night for Chicago, where he will address the Commercial Club to-morrow night. He left here at 5:47 o'clock.

The engagement to deliver an address before the Commercial Club was accepted by Governor Wilson long before election. The speech probably will be the last he will deliver outside of New Jersey before he becomes President. Returning, he will leave Chirakon Monday, when he will speak at a luncheon to be given the New Jersey electors, who meet that day.

With the New Jersey Legislature commanding his daily attention, it is expected the President-elect will have comparatively little time for national
